

ANNEX A: BSL 2019 Programme Highlights

Sing Lit Cloud

Local literature, meet the world wide web. Incorporating interactive technology with our advocacy in the literary arts, Sing Lit Cloud takes the form of a limited series of standing printers, capable of generating excerpts of quality Singaporean prose on-demand like the Teenage Textbook by Adrian Tan and They Do Return...But Gently Lead Them Back by Catherine Lim.

Organised by Sing Lit Station. Sing Lit Cloud Printers can be found in the following locations:

- Our Tampines Hub
- Mapletree Business City
- Library@Harbourfront

Grab SingLit

Organised by Localbooks.sg with the support of Grab Singapore.

- GrabRewards (8-31 Mar 2019): Grab users will be able to use GrabRewards to redeem a mystery SingLit book gift from any of the 14 different locations including bookshops and co-working spaces around Singapore. 8,000 books are up for grabs, with titles including Balik Kampung by Verena Tay and Lieutenant Kurosawa's Errand Boy by Warran Kalasegaran.

Other #BuySingLit 2019 programmes to look out for:

Pesta Buku Melayu – Buana Buku Rimbun Ilmu (World of Books, Luxury of Knowledge) [16-17 Mar] – Singapore’s First Malay-centric book carnival organised by Pustaka Islamiyah. Held in Wisma Geylang Serai, this programme features six different Malay publishers in Singapore coming together for a weekend of literary activities and storytelling, celebrating the Malay language and culture. More info: <https://www.facebook.com/events/322975428312978/>

Textures [8-10 Mar] – The Arts House’s signature programme Textures returns on the first weekend of #BuySingLit as Textures 2019’s shining a spotlight on how words capture and decipher a spectrum of emotions and related themes, through curated programmes that transcend traditional literary art forms, ranging from performances, exhibitions, workshops, talks, and a book fair. More info: <https://www.theartshouse.sg/programmes/textures2019/>

Yong Siak Street Party [16-17 Mar] – Literature comes alive along Yong Siak Street in Tiong Bahru this weekend with a whole slew of SingLit activities including lunch with a local author, to a search for familiar local faces to win #BuySingLit book vouchers. Organised by indie bookstore BooksActually and their neighbours. More info: <https://facebook.com/booksactually>

We All Step On Snails: A Poetry & Terrarium Experience [9 and 17 Mar] – Everyone feels tired and uneasy from the dense urban life at some point in time. Calm those frayed nerves and fight the urban blues through a poetry performance by poet Marc Nair while crafting your very own terrarium. More info: <https://www.facebook.com/events/2235596683388760/>

Legend of Bukit Merah — An Intergenerational Adaptation [9 Mar] – This intergenerational theatre programme will explore the legend of Redhill based on the book Attack of The Swordfish. The participants, made up of senior citizens and kindergarten children, will explore different perspectives of the story in relation to the world today.
